

CGIR Doctoral Consortium and Paper Development Workshop 7th ICGS Annual Conference, Friday, October 8th, 2021

The CGIR Doctoral Consortium and Paper Development Workshop (PDW) will be held on Friday October 8th, 2021 as part of the preconference program of the 7th ICGS annual conference, that will be held at University of Groningen, October 8th-10th, 2021. The event, sponsored by Wiley, is organized in close collaboration with ICGS and CGIR, and involves current and former CGIR Editors. Participating Editors include Ruth Aguilera (Northeastern University), Jill Brown (Bentley University), Vidhi Chhaochharia (University of Miami), Huimin Chung (National Chiao Tung University), Abe de Jong (Monash University), Ravi Dharwadkar (Syracuse University), Alan E. Ellstrand (University of Arkansas), Chris Florackis (University of Liverpool), Huasheng Gao (Fudan University), Maria Goranova (University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee), Yaniv Grinstein (IDC Herzliya), Omrane Guedhami (University of South Carolina), Niels Hermes (University of Groningen), William Q. Judge (Old Dominion University), Eugene Kang (Nanyang Technological University), Aneel Keswani (City University), Elko Klijn (Old Dominion University), Krista Lewellyn (Florida Southern College), Maria Marchica (The University of Manchester), Andrea Melis (University of Cagliari), David Oesch (University of Zurich), Bo Qin (University of Melbourne), Peter Roosenboom (Erasmus University Rotterdam), Eduardo Schiehl (HEC Montreal), Wei Shi (Miami Business School), Konstantinos Stathopoulos (The University of Manchester), Till Talaulicar (University of Erfurt), Georgios Voulgaris (The University of Manchester), Cong Wang (Chinese University of Hong Kong), and Alessandro Zattoni (LUISS University).

Objective

ICGS and CGIR's mission is to improve the quality and the relevance of international corporate governance (CG) research. The purpose of the consortium and the PDW is to provide junior scholars with developmental feedback on their research papers in the field of CG. We are soliciting doctoral students and junior scholars – from any discipline (e.g., accounting, finance, organization, strategy) and any country – to submit an original paper on CG.

Program

The Consortium and the PDW is divided in two parts. In the first hour, CGIR Editors will meet individually with two authors and provide feedback on how to improve their papers, so to increase the probability of acceptance by CGIR or other CG journals. In the second hour, the CGIR Editors-in-Chief and Senior Editors will present the journal's mission and scope, the key statistics on submissions and acceptance rate, and the editorial review process. This will be followed by a question-and-answer session with the editorial team. At the end of the PDW, there will be the possibility to have informal conversations with the Editors-in-Chief, Editors and Editorial Board Members of CGIR so to learn the nuances of successful publication strategies.

Application process

Each applicant may submit only one paper, which may or may not also be scheduled to be presented later in the conference. Submitted papers must be less than 10,000 words in length, include an abstract, up to five keywords, and follow the CGIR author guidelines. Papers should be submitted via ConfTool at <https://www.confTool.net/icgs2021/> using Track G. The deadline for submissions is September 1st, 2021.

Submitters will be notified whether they can participate in the event by September 9th, 2021 and are asked to confirm their participation by September 16th, 2021. Authors will need to register for the 7th ICGS conference in order to participate in the event.

The workshop is planned as a hybrid (onsite and online) event, but COVID public health protocols closer to the date of the event may lead to the organization of a fully online event. Please address any questions to director@icgsociety.org.
